
Forepaugh Dissatisfied.

Messrs. Brown and White, on behalf of Circus Manager Adam Forepaugh, yesterday filed reasons for a new trial of the suit recently tried before Judge Arnold, in which Miss Montague secured a verdict of $500 as compensation for injuries and expenses consequent upon her fall from the back of an elephant in July, 1881. They claimed that the judge erred in allowing a witness named Barnhart to testify as to a conversation between Eph Thompson and Addie Forepaugh, in which the latter referred to the dangerous character of the elephant; that he should not have charged the jury that a few exhibitions of anger on the elephant's part would justified its being treated as a vicious animal, and that the verdict was contrary to the law, the evidence and the judge's charge.
